P R E F A C E.

IN the month of October, 1875, the Women's Centennial Executive Committee appointed three of their number to act as a Committee on Charities.

A circular shortly after issued by this sub-committee expressed the object and scope of their work as follows:—

It is proposed to obtain information concerning the various forms of Religious, Philanthropic and Patriotic work, organized or conducted by women in America and in foreign countries.

This is done to enable them to give a bird's-eye view of women's work in these directions at the International Exhibition, and to illustrate the fact, that a large proportion of the charities of the world are now conducted by women.

It will comprehend within its scope Homes and Asylums of all sorts—Mission work in its broadest sense in our cities, country, and foreign lands—Industrial Schools and Sisterhoods, the Temperance cause, and every other organized form of benevolence.

It is proposed, as far as possible, to have a printed report of the rise and progress of such good works, accompanied by a lithograph or other representation in the case of an institution or school.

In the general circular issued by the Executive Committee, the President writes:—

In order to obtain a definite idea of the Charitable Institutions carried on by women, photographs of these institutions, with a short account of the same, are respectfully solicited from the women conducting such institutions in foreign countries as well as in America.

The system adopted in the United States has been to invite the co-operation of the Chairman of State Committees, where such existed, to form sub-committees charged with obtaining information of the various charities conducted by women throughout their several States. Where no such organization existed, lists of charitable institutions were obtained from State reports, directories, and other sources, and the chairman entered into direct correspondence with the officers of each association.

Foreign countries were addressed through their commissioners to the Exhibition.

During December and January, 1876, about 2000 circulars were sent out, most of them accompanied by written notes, asking for short sketches and statistical reports of benevolent institutions.

The committee had proposed to revise these and edit them in book form, and had so written to many of the associations addressed.

The replies to these communications came in slowly, so that early in April it became manifest that the preparation of such a book, to be in time for the Exhibition, was impossible.

It was then determined to classify and arrange the material sent, and hold it for inspection in the Women's Department, and to prepare a catalogue, with tabulated statements, which would still give, as promised in the circular, a bird's-eye view of Women's Charitable work.

It would have been desirable to have given correct statistical tables, but it was impossible, from the character of the greater portion of the histories sent, to have gleaned reliable statistics. Even the data here given were collected from a mass of much irrelevant matter with great labor. In very many instances, neither the date of foundation nor the names of any of the managers were given, and the inference that the associations were conducted by women was made simply from the fact of classifying themselves among Women's Charities.

Very many of the reports sent us are truly admirable, and so full of valuable information that we regret giving so bare a skeleton of their contents.

It is noticeable that apart from the great cities which are necessarily centres of destitution, suffering, and crime, there are few charitable associations. From hundreds of the towns and villages scattered over our rich mountains and fertile valleys there came this answer to our request for the story of their works of benevolence: We have no need of public charities here—we have no poor. Happy that record for any people. We cannot forbear calling attention to this testimony to the comfort and plenty of the interior towns and agricultural districts of our country.

On the whole, the catalogue is a fair showing of the charities conducted by women in the United States, though not at all an exhaustive one.

Early in April the committee began to receive reports of European charities. Germany led the way. The circular of the committee was reprinted in the Kreuz-Zeitung, one of the principal newspapers of the Empire, and the response was very full and very cordial.

Germany has one of the best organized systems of benevolence in the world. The Women's Association of Germany wearing the badge of the Red Cross, with its 381 branches and 33,566 members, forms a complete network of charities, covering the whole empire. The central association is under the protection of the Empress of Germany, who interests herself actively in all its details, and many of the branches are under the immediate supervision of different members of the Imperial family.

The Empress has had the goodness to send for Exhibition at the Women's Department an album containing a series of photographs of charitable institutions, in Berlin, under her patronage.

The Arch-Duchess Louise, of Baden, and the Princess Ludwig, of Hesse Darmstadt, have also personally interested themselves to send admirable reports and illustrations of the Women's Associations under their care and protection.

From the Russian government the committee has received a complete series of reports of the system of Red Cross charities under the management of lady-committees. We quote from one of these, "The principal support of the entire society, as well as of its lady-committees, is the protection for which it is indebted to its Most August Patroness, Her Imperial Majesty, the Empress Maria Alexandrovna."

These reports are accompanied by maps showing the location of the 176 establishments under the management of the lady-committees, scattered over Russia and Siberia, also by photographs of the interior, and of the ground-floor plans of the hospital barracks.

We regret that much valuable matter sent to the committee by the Russian government does not come within the scope of its work, and cannot be fairly represented in this catalogue.

We have also a very large representation of women's charities in England. From the Home bearing the name and under the protection of the Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne, we have received samples of needle-work, illustrating their manner of instruction.

Very full reports of the Society for Promoting Female Welfare have been sent us. It has 74 branch associations in England and Ireland, embracing almost every form of benevolence, and is an admirable example of a coherent, far-reaching organization, conducted by women.

We cannot sufficiently praise the manner in which the Danish material has been prepared. It consists of thirty-one short pointed sketches translated into English.

In almost every other instance the tabular statements were eliminated with labor out of yearly reports, often in foreign tongues. In this case the most exact information was ready prepared to our hand. If the limits of the catalogue had permitted, it would have been a pleasure to have printed the whole manuscript. For this service we are indebted to the kindness of Mr. Thomas Schmidt, Commissioner from Denmark.

We regret no response to our request from other countries in Europe, and still more do we regret that with the promise from Sweden and Switzerland of contributions to our collection, the matter has not reached us in time for our catalogue.

The committee desire to express their sincere thanks to all those associations that have kindly responded to the request contained in their circular, in consequence of which a very valuable collection of manuscripts, printed reports, and pictures is now in possession of the Women's Centennial Executive Committee. Their thanks are also due to Mrs. S. A. Martha Canfield, of the Educational Bureau at Washington, for kind services rendered.

If any are disappointed in the result of the work of the committee, we can only say, that we have faithfully tried in the short time allotted to us to make the best use of the material sent. If any of our women's associations do not find a record here, it is because they have not sought it.

To the many this catalogue with its brief statements will have little to attract. While in our Women's Department the eye is everywhere pleased and instructed by works of art, handicraft, and invention, showing women's beginnings in many new fields of usefulness, this addresses itself the rather to the mind's eye. It calls upon the imagination to picture, on the one hand, the vast army of good women, earnest with God-like love, doing brave battle with the hosts of vice and suffering, and, on the other, the still vaster array of the healed, the comforted, and the saved.

In works of charity, above every other, it may be truly said of woman—
